FRATRICIDE IN THE BEND.

ALE THE ITALIAN COLORY EAGER TO CAPTURE THE MURDERER

Rosario Marrigliano, a Pondar Yever Peddier, Kitled by His Breaken Brother, Whom He Was Taking from a Naloca,

There was a murder in Mulberry Bend yesterday, and although the police were on the scene ten minutes after it was committed, the murderer escaped. His libert, it is expected, will be short lived, for not only the police, but move of the residents of the Italian quarter are lookwas one of the most popular young men in the Bend. In most of the murder cases in this section of the city the police have been hand; capped by the fact that the murderer's countrymen have always done all they could to aid him to escape. This time the Italians are working with the police, so it is not likely that the mur derer will remain at liberty long.

The dead man's name is Rosario Marcigliano.

He was 23 years old, and one of three brothers, who are among the best known Italians to the lower part of the city. The murderer is Gennario Marcigliano, the eldest of the brothers parto and Pasouale are both married, and have children. The former is 33 years of age, and the latter 27. All three lived at 49 Mulberry street, Rosario boarding with his brothers. All the men are peddlers, and have been more prosperous than most of their neighbors. They operated three or four pushcarts each.

cheeked and well looking, and was copular with everybody on account of his good name. He never indulged in anything stronger than beer, although, like the rest of the Italians in the neighborhood, he was a constant frequenter of the saloons thereabouts Pasquale has never been much of a drinking man, but the elder brother had the reputation in the Bend of being a hard drinker and of being extremely bad tempered when under the influ-ence of liquor. He has been in a number of fights and barroom brawls. On one occasion he was cut in the side and was confined to his bed enteremely bad tempered when under the influence of liquits and barroom brawis. On one occasion he was cut in the side and was confined to his bed for several days.

The three brothers started out at an early hour yesterday morning with their pushcarts. They went in different directions, and at about 21. M. Pasquale and Rossrio returned, put up their carts, and then wandered over to the salcon at 68 Mulberry street, which is kept by Demenico Russo. There they met a number of friends, and before long were engaged in a game of cards. It was about 3 o'clock when Gennario opened the door with a bang and walked in.

Now the Italians in Mulberry Bend know Gennario as bad man when in his cups, and atthough the salcon was crowded, no one spoke to him or interfered with him in any way. Pasquals and Rosario looked up, saw who the new-comer was, and then went on with their game. They were used to their brother, and did not suppose he would do anything worse tigns swert a little, make a few wild threats, and then strut out of the place. But the man was very drunk, and the bartender, Domenico Imperueso, fearing trouble, went over to Rosario and asked him to get his brother out of the place.

In the mean time telemanto had been walking up and down the place giving vent to choice Italian oaths. Finally he strutted up to the bartender not to fill the order.

"Go home yourself," replied Gennario.

Some one shouted to Rosario to force his brother out, and the young man proceeded to be set, as for the said, "Go to bed and get a good sleep."

Pasquale Morcigliano and Domenico Imperu-eso, the bartender, who lived at 147 Elizabeth street, were arrested last night as witnesses and locked up in the Elizabeth street station house.

HERMES ON TRIAL FOR MURDER. The Newark Wife Killer Will Try to Prove His Crime Masslaughter.

Joseph Hermes was put on trial in Newark yesterday for murder. On June 16 Hermes went home later than usual. It was Saturday night, and he had stopped at several saloons on the way. His wife was tired waiting for him, and when he told her that he had not been paid that day she refused to give him any supper, but finally yielded. Afterward Hermes up stairs, took his gun from its case, and load-up stairs, took his gun from its case, and loading it, stood it in the hall outside of the kitchen door. Then he went into the kitchen, and, approaching his wife, said:

"You don't like me."

"Go away, you drunkard," she replied.

"Oh, that's all right," said Hermes, and going to the door he got his gun and blew off the top of his wife's head. Hermes was trying to raise the other hammer when his sons sprang upon him and disarmed him.

In his cross-examination of witnesses resterday M. T. Barrett, counsel for the prisoner, incated the line of the defence. It is proposed to show that the killing was not premeditated and to make the case one of manistaghter. The case will probably last several days more.

PLENTY OF POISONS AT HAND.

The Crap-playing German Chose the Most Bendly of All, Prussic Acid.

Gustave Ochme, a German 22 years old, who lived at 171 Grand street, Brooklyn, committed suicide with prussic acid yesterday morning. Ochme was employed in the chemical works of W. H. Schleffelin & Co. at 458 and 400 East 144th street. He earned about $10 per week. He played craps and won so rarely that he had corrowed money from most of his fellow workers. He received his salary on Saturday, but tid not have a cent in his nockets yesterday when he killed himself.

There were plenty of poisons to choose from in the factory. About 11 o'clock he chose the most effectual known, prussic acid, and drank it in the manufactory in the presence of his fellow workmen. He fell to the floorsnimest as soon as the poison touched his lips, and died before the hearing pambled himself into debt in a small way was the only reason his associates could assign for his suicide.

Pined $3 for Playing Good Samuritan A we'l dressed, middle-aged man, who said he was in charge of the Publishera' Printing Company and resided at 51 South Fourth avenue, Williamsbridge, was fined $3 by Police Justice Meads in the Yorkville Court yesterday, The prisoner gave his name as John A. Davenport, and Policeman King of the East Thirty-fifth and Policeman King of the East Thirty-lith street station, who arrested him said he had been drinking and was disorderly.

Davenport denied that he had been drinkin. He added that there was a runaway on Third avenue on Sunday evening, and that a man was thrown from a carriage at the corner of Thirty-tourth street and badly cut about the head. At the expense of a new suit of clothes Davenport assisted the man to a heighboring drug store and suggested how the homorrhage could be cally stanched. At this the druggist ordered him out, and when he expostulated he was arrested.

DIED IN AN AMBULANCE.

The Strange Death of a Prisoner in Brooklyn Police Station. James Cannan, 20 years old, of 102 Tremot street, died yesterday morning in the ambulance on his way to the Long Island College Hospital from the Richmond street police station in intoxication. The autopsy showed that death resulted from a fracture of the skull, but in what manner the injury was received has not been explained. On Sunday afternoon Cannan boarded the tugboat W. H. Bentley, lying at the Erie Basin, to see Fireman Francis Quigley, with basin. At an early hour in the morning Policeman Peacock found them in a helplessly intoxicated condition at the foot of William street, and he says they were quarrelling. He sumand he says they were quarreling. He summoned a patrol wagon, and, with the assistance of Policemen Looney and Quinan, they were put absard of it and taken to the Richard street police station, where they were put in separate cells. With the exception of a slight cut on Quickley's lip, neither man showed any sign of cells. With the exception of a slight cut on Quickley's lip, neither man showed any sign of violence.

At 6160'clock Cannan asked the doorman for a drink of water, and on receiving it sat down on the bench in his cell. Forly minutes later, when the doorman returned to the cell, he found Cannan stretched on the bench apparently unconscious. An ambulance was summoned and the still unconscious man was taken to the hospital. He died before the ambulance had gone more than a few blocks. Blood was flowing from the man's mouth and nose before his removal from the cell, and it is thought he may have received the fracture of the skull by tumbling off the bench on the stone floor after the doorman had given him a drink of water. There was no external injury on the skull or any bruises on the body. Quigley did not know of his friend's death until his arraignment in court. He had no distinct recollection of the occurrences of the previous night, but said that at the time of the arrest there was "some fighting and clubbing."

The three policemen, however, positively deny that they used their clubs on either of the prisoners. Both men, they say, were so drunk that they could scarcely stand up, and that there was no provocation to club them, as they made no resistance whatever. Coroner Rooney will hold an inquest to-day. Cannon was a boiler maker and came recently from Philadelphia.

Will, but She Makes Out a Case. The will of John Swinburne, an actor of the ld school, was admitted to probate yesterday, and it was decreed by Surrogate Arnold that the woman referred to in his will as Jennie Linsky is his widow. Swinburne for several He used to drop in at the Actors' Fund rooms ccasionally while in town and seek out some of his old friends. For several years before his death he was a heavy drinker. When he died in this city in August, 1891, he had about $0,000 of personal property and some real estate in Syracuse.

His will left about $5,000 in small sums ranging from $50 up to about $200 to nephews, nicces, and friends. The will said nothing about a wife, and his relatives supposed that he was a bachelor. He was about fifty years old at his death, and had been living at 331 East Thirty-third street. The woman who has now established that she is his wife was referred to in the will in this way;

"I give to my friend, Mias Jennie Linsky, $500, providing she can establish her identity and that she is leading a moral life."

The will was made in May, 1891. Jennie Linsky, declaring herself the widow, contested it. When the case came on before Surrogate Arnold yesterday the lips of the contestant concerning the alleged marriage were closed by the law. Her contention was based on a marriage by mutual agreement about five years ago.

Patrick Egan, who has a hotel at Clinton place and Mercer street, testified that Swinburne introduced the contestant as his wife. Judge Prendegast of Chicago made deposition that he had known Miss Linsky from childhood, and that in 1890 she had called on him with Swinburne, whom she introduced as her husband. Swinburne always referred to her as his wife.

band. Swinburne always referred to her as his wife.

Swinburne was in Chicago when the will was drawn by Lawyer David Sullivan of that city. Mr. Sullivan testified that Swinburne was sane at the time. Swinburne did not know any one of standing in Chicago except Mr. Prendegast, so when it came to fill in the name of an executor Mr. Sullivan suggested Prendegast. Swinburne said he did not want Prendegast to know anything about it. Swinburne then insisted that the name of Michael Kerwin, one of Chicaso's men of wealth, be put in as executor, and it was done. Swinburne had never met Kerwin, and had only heard of him as a millionaire.

The Surrogate decided that the contestant is entitled to the $500 and to dower in all real estate which Swinburne left,

A CHARITABLE VERSION OF THE CORTLANDT STREET TRAGEDY.

The Composions of Dr. Whettemore and Mr. Basley Declare That Their Beaths Were Dan to Accident-Neither Drunk. The uncertainty which has surrounded the death of Dr. Francis S. Whettemore and George H. Basiey, who were killed by a Sixth avenue levated train at the Cortlandt street station on Saturday, was explained yesterday. According to the story told by two of the dead men's companions, who were present when the accident occurred, neither Basley nor Whettemore jumped in front of the engine. The three men who were in the company of Basley and Whettemore when they were struck by the train were W. S. Pollock of Bayonne, N. J., Walter South-wick, and a Mr. Traverse. Pollock, who is a salesman in the employ of Koul-Duval, Stevens & Hall, wine importers at 62 Pine street, gave an account of the accident yesterday.

He said that the five men played billiards at 71 Broadway nearly all Saturday afternoon. During the game they had several drinks, but not enough to affect them. When it was finally suggested that the party break up and go home, all consented except Dr. Whettemore. He said that, being a boarder at a hotel, he did not know what to do with himself. After a short discussion the party quitted the billiard room, Basley and Southwick going on ahead. Dr. Whettemore invited Pollock to dine with him at the Savoy Hotel, and the latter, who had intended to go to Bayonne, decided to accompany his friend up town. When Whettemore pany his friend up town. When Whettemore, Pollock, and Traverse reached the up-town elevated station at Cortlandt street they saw Hasley and Southwick standing near the rear end of the platform.

Hasley was standing on the raised part of the platform, looking toward a train which was approaching from the south. Whettemore noticed him, and stepped ahead of his companions with the remark: "Hallow! there's Bill waiting for us."

Basley turned his head, and at the same proaching from the south. Whettemore noticed him, and stepped ahead of his companions with the remark: "Hallow! there's Bill waiting for us."

Basley turned his head, and at the same moment Dr. Whettemore placed his hand on his shoulder. Either because he lost his balance in turning suddenly, or was thrown out of equilibrium by the pressure on his shoulder. Hasley slipped and fell on the track directly in front of the rapidly approaching train. Instinctively Dr. Whettemere made a grab at his coat collar, and in so doing he, too, lost his halance and fell partly across the edge of the narrow platform.

"As the train dashed up," continued Mr. Pollock, "Hasley tried to rise from the track. The Doctor, apparently dazed, leaned half-way over the stringplece. Before any of us could recover from our horror the engine was alongside the platform. The Doctor was dragged from his position, falling between the platform and the edge of the car. When we recovered our senses we got the idea that Basley might have escaped being crushed by the engine.

"We saw that we could do nothing for the Doctor, so made a dash for the stairway, with the intention of going to the platform on the opposite side of the street. When we reached the street we found that Basley had also been nijured, and started to return to the platform where the accident occurred. The police refused to allow us to do so, however. When the bodies were taken away we went to the Hudson street hospital, and I offered to leave my name. They declined to take it."

Pollock and Southwick then went to Harlem and norified Basley's family of the accident. John T. McKeeber of Edw my name. They declined to take it."

Pollock and Southwick then went to Harlem and norified Basley's family of the accident. John T. McKeeber of Edw Mest 128th street. Basley's father-in-law, accompanied by Pollock and Southwick, went yesterday to the Church street station. Their statements were not taken, but they left their names and addresses, and will testify at the Coroner's inquest.

had been skylarking in the hotel a few days ago, and had been throwing some of the matchboxes about.

Ambrose E. Pratt of Sandwich, Mass., a brother-in-law of Dr. Whettemore, went to the Morgue yesterday and made arrangements for the removal of the body, Mr. Pratt said that his brother-in-law left Roston on Oct. 10. Since then his family had received one or two letters from him. In one of the letters he spoke about purchasing the practice of a physician who lived near this city. Since 1850, when he was graduated from the Harvard Medical School, Dr. Whettemore had carried on his profession in Hoston. He was 30 years old. According to Mr. Pratt he was in rather poor circumstances, but never showed any symptoms of being depressed. On the contrary, he was of a cheerful disposition.

Mr. Pratt asid the Doctor was not what is known as a drinking man. He was at one time house surgeon of the Children's Hospital in Boston. He was also a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society and of the University Club.

Club.

Last week he wrote to his mother that he expected to begin practising within a few weeks, and asked her to come and keep house for him. It had been arranged that he was to meet her in this city on Friday. Dr. Whettemore's body was taken to Sandwich late yesterday afternoon.

THE POLARIA'S ROUGH FOYAGE.

Into St. John's Short of Coal. St. John's, N. F., Nov. 26.—The Hamburg-American Company's steamer Polaria, eighteen days from Hamburg, bound for New York is here short of coal. She has a general cargo and 112 steerage passengers. The Polaria met with 112 steerage passengers. The Polaria met with rough weather almost from the beginning of her voyage, gales commencing in the North Sea and continuing right across the Atlantic. Mountainous seas swept her decks, bursting ventilators and hatchways and flooding her fore part. Oil was used plentifully fore and aft, and probably saved the steamer from more serious damage. She encountered another hurricane off this coast on Friday and Saturday, accompanied by very high cross seas, sweeping her decks several times, endangering her safety. The Polaria had only one day's coal aboard when she reached here. She will sail on Tuesday for New York.

Sunday Closing Movement in Buffalo. BUFFALO, Nov. 26.-The Revs. Willis P. O'Dell of the Delaware Avenue M. E. Church, Ira T. Walker of the Grace M. E. Church, and E. P. Hubbell of the Sentinel M. E. Church, called on the Police Commissioners this morning to conthe Police Commissioners this morning to confer on the question of closing up the saloons on Sunday. They said that it was determined to get out a petition asking the Commissioners to begin a crusade in an effort to suppress the evil. The Commissioners replied that they did not believe that more than one in ten of the citizens would sign such a petition, as the majority of the citizens were in favor of saloons being kept open on Sunday, for a limited number of hours any way.

"I advised the reverend gentlemen to wait until after the new Legislature should get in session," said a Commissioner. "I told them that that body would undoubtedly legislate on the liquor question and the Sunday closing law."

The ministers will probably get out the peti-tion spoken of to ascertain the sense of the com-munity.

Bagged a Fine Otter.

FREEHOLD, N. J., Nov. 26,-Theodore Elliott f Collier's Mills, a hamlet near here, has killed a fine otter in a lake belonging to Judge Emson of that place. Elliott discovered several days ago of that place. Elliott discovered several days ago that there were otters in the lake and he determined to secure one. He noticed that shortly before sunrise each morning the animals came out to sish and frolic. Before daybreak the hunter went to the lake and waited for the appearance of the game. He did not wait long. An otter came to the surface and Elliott fired, hitting the animal squarely in the mouth at the long range of seventy yards. The otter, which was killed instantly, measured four feet eight inches in length. instantly, measured four feet eight inches in length.

As the lake is private property and Judge Em-son does not permit hunting or fishing in its waters, there is very little probability that Mr. Eliiott's prize will be duplicated by any other hunter.

To-day's stock market was narrow, even for a surely professional affair, and was therefore absolutely uninteresting. The statement of the operations of the St. Paul Company for October encouraged the bears to attack that stock, with the view, it was said, of forcing a speculative pool in it to liquidate. This movement left St. Paul 15; W cent. lower than on Saturday, and affected the other Granger stocks sympa-thetically. The market as a whole reflected disappointment that the over-subscription of the Government loan did not give a distinct upward impetus to prices. The fact that none of the foreign banking houses was a succesaful bidder for the bonds was another un-toward influence that was reflected in higher rates for sterling exchange.

The award of the entire issue to a local syndicate was hardly a surprise, but the informal announcement by its representatives that the bonds will be offered to the public at 119 provoked a good deal of criticism from unsuccessful bidders, and particularly from those with se European connections. At the close of business the various members of the combination had paid into the Sub-Treasury nearly $9,000,000 on account of the first installment of the purchase price.

The next event of interest in Wall street will be the declaration of the semi-annual dividend upon Northwestern common to-morrow. wide difference of opinion exists as to whether the dividend will be at the usual rate or reduced to the basis of 5 F cent. per annum. The decline that has taken place in the stock indicates that the majority of the transactions in it have been upon the assumption that a reduction will be made. Should that view prove to be correct, the Street will doubtless find that as usual the event has been discounted.
